

4-H Welcomes Youth

Through 4-H, youth learn to set goals, organize their time, complete projects, evaluate what they've done and keep records. Learning life skills is easy when youth are having fun!

4-H Welcomes Families

When youth are active in 4-H, the whole family spends quality time together. Parents play a big part in helping children have a successful 4-H experience.

4-H Welcomes Adults

In Grant County over 243 adults volunteer their time and efforts for 4-H. Some are organizational leaders, others help by leading a project or activity.

4-H Partnerships

Educational programs, support, and coordination for 4-H is provided by the University of Wisconsin - Extension and the Grant County 4-H Youth Development Educator, a university faculty member. Federal, state and local government funds 4-H youth education through the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the University of Wisconsin, and Grant County.

Grant County 4-H Endowment Fund

4-H has allowed me to explore a variety of opportunities while learning life skills and gaining valuable leadership abilities. Through 4-H, I have traveled the nation, set and achieved many goals and exhibited my livestock throughout the state. My experiences in 4-H have resulted in a strong foundation that will aid me in my future career within the agricultural industry.

4-H helped me build character when I was a 4-H member, and it is doing the same thing today. It is a great program, and I whole-heartedly support it.

The Grant County 4-H Endowment Fund

was established to provide funding for educational and leadership opportunities for 4-H youth and adults. Support for the Endowment Fund ensures continuation of educational youth development programs to help youth learn important life skills and to become responsible, productive citizens.

Supporting the Endowment Fund

Dollars invested in the Endowment Fund today help the 4-H youth of Grant County for years to come. The earnings of this fund will not be used for current operating expenses of the 4-H Leaders Association.

Contributions for the Endowment Fund are tax deductible.

The Grant County 4-H Endowment Fund is a non-profit fund under the laws of the state of Wisconsin, and pursuant to Section 501-C-3 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 and Chapter 181 of the Wisconsin Statutes.
